MR. BEECHER'S POSITION.

Continued from First Page. many and many a horse that can run a quarter of a mile very rapidly, but fags on a four-mile stretch. The most comely and beautiful bridge in the world is just as good as any other bridge until it is tested. Wait till a great railroad train passes over it. That is the test. If it stands this it is good. The 7th Regiment-magnificent regiment; but what it is is not to be known by what you see of it in New-York, or in Boston, on charming parades, with men well dressed, hair well pomatumed, and everything all right; crowds looking on, and the ladies cheering. When the regiment has gone down with Sherman to the sea, and has come back, whoever is left has got the man in him. You take a sweet, amiable child, a whole house hold of them; they are of good stock, they are shielded from all trouble, they experi-ence religion when they are 12 or 15 years old, and they try to have horrible con-victions of their sinfulness, and all that (you might as well ask a rose to have horrible convictions), and if it please God that they shall go all through without any of the grand marks and characteristics of human experience, they are not tested, they are not tried. By and by our charming girl is married, and all bright prospects go with her; and in a year or two the busband-his blood is not what they thoughtgrows neglectful and unkind, and she goes on hiding r sorrow, and various descending steps are taken, and she finds herself at last at the very bottomand where is that rejoicing in going into the church,

This is no mere reasoning, no mere argument. It is as conviction as large as the capacity of my life. Do you suppose that anything can reach us so as to disturb the peace of the heart that believes in God, and eyer love. SMALL TROUBLES NOT TO BE TAKEN TO HEART. Now, let a man live in this way, live in it, follow

R out, realize it, and don't you see how the earth is changed, how the eternal life is changed, how different the world looks, how changed it might ander such circumstances ! So I turn. therefore, and how strange everything looks! How strange everything looks! Suppposing! were to read all the newspapers. [Langhter.] Now, what would you think of a man who took off all his clothes and rolled around in the thistles and nettles! [Langhter.] There are a great many men who seem to be to act like this. They hunt for trouble. They are living in order to find if there is not something to make them unhappy. I should like to know shout the ten thousand things that go into the newspaper, how much the man cares for them who wrote them? "What have you got?" So much, and down goes a paragraph. "Do you know this is so?" And no one laughs so much as the man who writes it, about your reading it. It amounts to nothing; just like a puff-bubble, if you let them go, they will go out. They are gas, and they go to gas. I do not go collecting all these little affairs; I let them come to me. Suppose I should say everybody is going against me; everybody is fighting against me, and nobody is opposed as I am, and I wonder if anybody pities me? Do you suppose that I am such a sneak as that? I don't care as much about it as I care for the smallest affairs of life.

I am about to use an illustration that may go home to some of you, and to others it may not. Suppose the man takes a glass of beer and there are bubbles on it. He wishes to drink it, but waits until the bubbles are gone. He would be very foolish, in the opinion of those who drink beer, to wait until the bubbles are gone. When God made fleas, he also made human fleas. When He made vermin in the world, He created them also in socriety. These are only the prototypes and parallelisms of the human family. A man might as well sit on the edge of the Dismal Swamp, and mourn to think how many vermin there were creeping about, might as well mourn that there were so many potato-bugs among the potatoes. The moment a man begins to mourn vermin, he has a life work before him. [Laughter]. And people come to say, "Beecher, you don't mean to say you don't care?" If I laugh and smile, they say it is affectation. It is not because we do not care, it is because an affair that would trouble one man does not trouble another man the same. You would not call such men as these men, but homuneuli.

PEACE AFTER FIVE YEARS OF TRIAL.

I have gone through some things in the last five years of my life as it befalls no man to experience in more sorrow, and various descending stepsers. Labors and where is that rejecting in goal into the church, and where is that rejecting in goal into the church and where is that rejecting in goal into the church and the Christmas can be processions, and all the contractive parts. I might say, of religion f What was the power of religion with her Julius processions, and the darkness and the ten thousand petry annoyaness of earth, and day by day stand over her and take care of her? If it did that, then sorrow and trouble goal the contract of the care of her? If it did that, then sorrow and trouble eat countervalling force.

maner, a inhorer residing in Olive-st., had been at work cleaning the ceilar of the building at No. 10 Birmingham-st, and went to the hydrant at No. 8 Birmingham-st, to wash his hands. While engaged in doing this, Dennis Maney, the proprieter of the place, came up behind him and fired twice, hitting him both times in the back. When arrested, Maney gave as an excuse for the assunt that Maher was washing at his hydrant without permission. Maher will probably recover.

A BRAVE TRAVELER.

From The Louteville Courier-Journal.

He got on the train to go to Cincinnati. He bad no tloket, money or friends. Jake Kizer, the conductor, put him off three or four times, kicking him out every time. Jake caught him above Lagrange the last time, stopped the train, jerked him out of his seat, and commenced kicking him out of the car, at the same time stopping to sak him, "Where are you going to, anyhow;" The "dead beat" looked at Jake and said: "i'm going to Cincinnati if my breeches and coat-Eilis hold out;" and Jake's boot lifted him out of the door and off the platform. He was a Cincinnati drummer for a abox house, and took a seat on a string, waiting for Bub Voria to come along and hall him.

GERMAN DEMOCRATS AGAINST REDUCED WAGES.

The German Democratic Central Committee held a meeting inst evening at the Teutonia Assembly Rooms, Alderman Gross in the chair. The Executive nittee presented a set of resolutions, which first placed the responsibility for all existing corruption and evils of the National Government upon the Republican party, and then requested the City Council and Tam-many Hall organization to endeavor to have recalled the action lately taken by which the wages of the laborers or the public works were reduced. The Democrats were also advised not to make Tammany Hall a close corporation as such action has always proved prejudicial to the

Immediately after the reading of the resolutions, a member representing the XIIIth Assembly District com-plained that Tammany Hall completely neglected that district, where not a single German received any employment from the City, although the attention of the Mayor had been called to the fact. After a long discussion, in which the authorities were recommended to administer other departments more economically, which would save the city much larger sums of money than by cutting down wages, the meeting adjourned.

A SINGULAR OMISSION IN A LAW. Corporation Counsel E. Delafield Smith has given an opinion in response to the resolution of Alder man Morris with reference to the omission in the act passet by the last Legislature providing for the repaying of streets to make any provision for the present year. In his opinion the law is imperative this year because of the lack of an appropriation to meet the expenses to be incurred under it, and no recommendation of the Depart ment of Public Works or resolution of the Common Council can supply this serious omission. The Corpora Council can supply this serious omission. The Corporation Counsel recites the general provisions of the act, and savs it is further provided that the costs shall be included in the estimate of the Department of Public Works, and shall be appropriated by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and included in the annual tax levies. He adds that it is to be regretted that the framers of the law should not have made adequate provision to apply its benefits within the present year. As the Tax Levy was made in November, 1874, no specific appropriation was made for the repayement of the streets, as the act of the Legislature could not have been foreseen. The Corporation Counsel suggests that the Roard of Estimate and Apportionment give the matter immediate consideration. It is believed that the only funds to be used for this purpose are the unexpended balances of other appropriations.

PROPERTY-HOLDERS' INTERESTS IN NEW STREETS.

An application was made yesterday to Judge Davis, in Supreme Court, Chambers, by Wm. Sinelair, ir., and James A. Deering, on behalf of property-holders in the upper part of the city, for a mandamus against the Commissioners to open the new avenues between St. Nicholas-ave. and Eighth-ave., and for opening One-hundred and fiftieth and One nundred and fifty fifth sta., requiring them to receive objections, though the time limerly laid, the ears frequently run off, making a great noise, which is alleged to have caused the death of an invalid woman.

> TWEED'S CONFINEMENT UNCHANGED. Wm. M. Tweed remained quietly in his room in Ludlow Street Jall yesterday. The heat prevented his leaving the prison in company with a Deputy Sheriff to endeavor to procure bail. It is understood that he has strong hopes that his ball will be reduced, and if placed at a much lower figure than $3,000,000, he will do his atmost to procure it. If it is left at the present figure there is not much likelihood that he will seriously endeavor to procure it. He still denies himself to any one des his counsel and relatives.
